

You attend a Halloween party and some of you and your friends have dressed up in really revealing and inappropriate costumes, e.g. as bunny girls. You put your photos on Facebook. You decide to make one particularly revealing picture of you your profile image. Because of this you get many people wanting to be your friend, despite the fact the profile is private.

1) What could you have done to avoid this?

2) Are you aware of what other people have posted on their social networking sites and how this may portray you to other people?

3) Who else may be viewing your profile or photos of you online? Why should you be concerned?
